MEET THE EXPLORERS

Unit 1

DANIEL RAVEN-ELLISON Geographer

Daniel Raven-Ellison believes that geography helps you to see the world around you in new ways. Daniel explores urban areas. He has walked across many cities, taking a picture after every eight steps! Daniel wants everyone to get outdoors, explore, and discover the surprises that the world has for us.

Unit 2

GUILLERMO DE ANDA Underwater Archaeologist

Guillermo de Anda explores caves in the Yucatán Peninsula in Mexico, sometimes for more than 12 hours at a time. He searches for artifacts from the Maya civilization. Guillermo often explores underwater in small and dark places. Would you enjoy this unusual job?

Unit 3

DAVID GRUBER Marine Biologist

David Gruber has always loved the ocean. When he was a teenager, he learned to surf. While he surfed, he wondered what was below the waves. Now David is a marine biologist. He studies underwater animals that make their own light. David wants to understand these incredible creatures and why they glow.

Unit 4

DOMINIQUE GONÇALVES Elephant Ecologist

Dominique Gonçalves works to reduce conflict between people and elephants. Between 800 and 1,000 elephants live in Gorongosa National Park in Mozambique. Dominique tracks the movements of these elephant herds. Dominique helps people learn to coexist with elephants.

Unit 5

ANDRÉS RUZO Geoscientist

Andrés Ruzo grew up between Nicaragua, Peru, and Texas. As a boy in Lima, Peru, he heard a legend about a boiling river deep in the Amazon jungle. As a PhD student he learned it was real, and became the first geoscientist given permission to study the Boiling River. It was dangerous work. A local shaman told him, “Use your feet like eyes.” You can’t see heat, but you can feel it when you step near it. So Andrés wore sandals!

Unit 6

JAHAWI BERTOLLI Filmmaker/Music Producer/Photographer

Jahawi Bertolli is a filmmaker, photographer, and music producer from Kenya. Jahawi’s photographs and films show the wildlife on land and life under the water that he wants to preserve. While on safari, Jawahi found an ancient rock gong. He made a film about the story of the rock gongs and the people who live near them.

Unit 7

MANU PRAKASH Biophysicist

As a child, Manu Prakash enjoyed experimenting in an empty chemistry lab. Now he’s a biophysicist who has his own lab at Stanford University. Manu believes everyone should be able to understand science. That’s why he created the Foldscope, a paper microscope. He hopes that this inexpensive tool will allow more people, especially young people, to make discoveries.

Unit 8

NORA SHAWKI Egyptian Archaeologist

Nora Shawki believes there is a story behind everything. She is an Egyptologist, an archaeologist who studies ancient Egypt. Nora and her team dig for artifacts, or things people made many years ago. Then she studies the artifacts to learn about the people who used them. Her work is like a puzzle because she puts pieces together to create a story about the past.

VOCABULARY

1 What places and buildings are in cities?

Discuss. Then listen and read.  1.1

Songdo is a very special place. In 2001, the government of South Korea said they wanted a “green” city—an urban area that is better for nature. Seoul, the capital city, was already very big, so they designed and built a new city. They decided to build Songdo about 55 km (35 mi.) from Seoul.

Architects worked for years to plan the city. They wanted Songdo to have parks and green space for everyone in the community to enjoy. Now 40 percent of the city is outdoor green space! Songdo also has 25 km (15 mi.) of bike paths. This means people can ride bikes from the apartments they live in to the offices they work in. They don't always have to drive a car. Bus and train stations are also a short walk from anywhere in the city. Fewer cars means a greener city!

Songdo also has special architecture. The Northeast Asia Trade Tower is one of the tallest skyscrapers in South Korea. The buildings in Songdo are also unusual because they are connected! Computers are built into the houses, apartments, schools, and offices. These indoor spaces can be controlled by phones. All of this means that Songdo is also a smart city!

Nowhere is perfect, though. People from rural areas and other cities say that Songdo doesn't have a sense of community. People don't talk to neighbors or go out to restaurants. Many green spaces are empty. One resident says, "There are a lot of people here, but you don't really see them."

What do you think? What is the most important part of a city? Is Songdo a symbol of a smart and green future, or are the communities of a city more important? Only time will tell.

2 LEARN NEW WORDS. Listen and repeat.  1.2

3 WORK IN PAIRS. Choose five vocabulary words. Write a question using each word. Then ask another pair your questions.

What is the Northeast Asia Trade Tower?

A skyscraper!

4 WORK IN GROUPS. Compare Songdo to the place where you live. How are they the same or different? What do you like or dislike about each place?

5 Read and write the words from the list. Make any necessary changes.

READING

A New Type of Park

London: A capital and a national park city

Imagine stepping out your front door and standing in the middle of a national park city. The work of Daniel Raven-Ellison helps make this possible for millions of London residents. Daniel was a leader in the effort to make London a national park city.

London is a big city with buildings, residents, and more than 13,000 kinds of wildlife. These animals and plants live in the city's 3,000 parks. In fact, 47 percent of the land in London is green space.

"We have 8 million trees in London; it's the world's largest urban forest," Daniel says.

That's almost one tree for every person living in London! The city has a goal that every resident can walk to green space from their home in less than 10 minutes.

Daniel believes that having London as a national park city protects the animal life and green space in the city. He wants to encourage people of all ages to spend more time outdoors. Daniel takes his own son out to explore London, and he thinks that other families should do the same. Daniel thinks that people who spend a lot of time in nature live happy and healthy lives. What do you think?

1 Make Predictions Work in pairs. You can look at the title, headings, photos, and captions to guess what a reading is about. This is called making a prediction. Look at the title and the photo. What do you think the reading is about?
